THE process of de-Stalinization does not proceed at equal speed everywhere in Eastern Europe; here and there a change of all can be reported with a few fields the process of ferment still continues and its results are not yet clear. Poland, where apparently are now taking place, a few scapegoats have been sacrificed but otherwise there has been no change at all as far as political power is concerned. Many, but not all the victims of purges of years past have been rehabilitated, but even those Communist leaders who were purged and are still alive (such as Dabrowski in Germany, Gomułka in Poland et al) are not restored to positions of influence. In Bulgaria, Mr. Chervenev had to step back in view of his close ties with Stalin and Beria, but only (reports Communist sources) after some of his colleagues had talked themselves into a state of nervous exhaustion trying to persuade him that his departure to a less conspicuous post would be in the best interests of all concerned. Messrs. Ulbricht, Rabinovitch, the Czech and Rumanian leaders have come under fire from their own parties; but they argue that there have been no personal changes in Russia either during the last year or so—why should they follow a different course? There is even less change in the affairs of the Western Communist parties; Thorez, Togliatti, Politi and the others have been strongly criticized everywhere in the old leadership continues to cling to power. Their argument is that the Soviet and East European parties may well as well carry out radical changes, but the Communist parties in the West must not do so, otherwise they will be fatally weakened in the struggle against the political foes at home.

IN the cultural field too there has been little change—again, Poland apart. Mr. Nazim Hikmet, the exiled Turkish Communist poet, has told a Czech Writers Congress that it may be an excellent idea to meet in future in small groups in a room rather than having routine congresses, but for the time being his proposal has not yet been adopted. The second and last issue of the Soviet literary monthly "Znamya" ("Banner") is dedicated to the literary work of some people ever since the publication of the first part of this novel, the very name of which was to symbolize the new climate of opinion. A number of authoritative articles on the party line in Soviet literature have been published in the last issue of the respective periodicals tend to nip in the bud any excessive hopes for cultural freedom. The 20th anniversary of 1946-48 was basically correct, we are told, though occasionally it was interpreted in a too "sectarian" manner. In Poland there has been a fairly violent reaction against "Socialist Realism," but elsewhere the old shibboleths have been reviewed and reaffirmed. The situation is more satisfactory in history, where textbooks are now extensively rewritten, not only in Communist party history. The pupils of the tenth form in the Soviet Union are spared their final examination in modern history this year. The new textbooks are not yet ready. According to a fairly large number of high and mighty opinions contained in the last two issues of "Voprosy Istorii," the central organ of Soviet historians, the new books in general tend to regard the Soviet Union as a more unified state than those produced around 1953, after Stalin's victory over all "deviationists" but before the worst excesses of Stalinism had been committed.

Cypriot Terrorists Hunted in U.K.

LONDON, Wednesday.—Scotland Yard continued its search today for Cypriot extremists believed to have arrived in Britain with orders to attack political leaders. Scotland Yard received reports over the week-end that the extremists had been seen in the area of the Greek Cypriots in Nicosia two weeks ago. Armed policemen were placed around No. 10 Downing Street for the first time since the Irish Republic's independence in 1922. Security guards were strengthened around Sir Anthony Eden and other officials. The British Embassy in Nicosia has been found and a search for the extremists has been launched. The Cyprus Government today ordered compulsory registration of Cypriots in some areas, in order to give the whole population identity cards. One immediate object, according to an official statement, is to facilitate movements of citizens on their lawful occasions and minimize inconvenience caused to them by security checks and searches. Immediately affected is the mountainous south-west where the population of 73 villages, some of them the scene of recent acts of violence, will be registered immediately. British troops and police searched in Limassol and Nicosia for attackers responsible for killing three British, and wounding 21, all in the past two days. Tonight terrorists shot dead a member of the security forces at Polis Village, 112 kilometres west of Nicosia.

THE OUTLOOK IS BLEAK

Hal Lebowitz's concluding installment of his three articles on the accomplishments of the Cypriot regime appears in tomorrow's issue of The Jerusalem Post. Other articles include the first of a series on the integration of Israel's social structure, by Gershon Legum, and the second of a series on Monetary Policy and the State Budget, by Felix A. Lebowitz. A survey of automation in America is also included in the issue.

Mendes Resigns In Protest on Algeria

PARIS, Wednesday.—Minister of State Pierre Mendes-France, the Radical Premier who launched France's "new deal" for North Africa two years ago, resigned today from the three-month-old Government. He told the Socialist Premier, Guy Mollet, that his continued presence in the Cabinet could only lead to a divided Council and weaken the Government's authority.

M. Mendes-France complained that the Government was not taking any military action in dealing with the Algerian insurgents, while he advocated a series of steps to lower political tension and increase social reforms.

Secretary of State for Information Gerard Jaquet, of the Radical Party, announced M. Mendes-France's resignation. He said that the other 13 Radical ministers were staying on at M. Mendes-France's request.

Although M. Mendes-France's chief criticism is on Algeria, he is also in disagreement with the Government's financial policy which he considers has encouraged an inflationary tendency. He is also known to have been extremely put out by M. Mollet's failure to offer him the post of Foreign Minister.

No Changes Seen
No immediate changes are expected in the composition of the Government. M. Mendes-France's resignation increases the Government's unity and makes the conduct of policy easier for the Premier.

Eshkol Erred In House Sale—B-G

By ARYAH RUBINSTEIN, Jerusalem Post Reporter
The Prime Minister told the Knesset yesterday that Minister of Finance Levi Eshkol had made an "aesthetic error" by selling his apartment to the Government.

Moses Submits Review of Case

There is no reason to believe that the Government made a bad deal in buying the Minister of Finance's flat in Rehov Metudela in Jerusalem, nor can it be claimed that Mr. Eshkol would have had to accept a lower price if he had sold the apartment to a private party. This is stated by Dr. Moses, the State Controller, in his report submitted to the Chairman of the Knesset Finance Committee yesterday.

Progressive Abstain

A Communist motion to refer the question to the Finance Committee was supported by the General Zionists, the Progressives and Herut abstained. The vote was 11-34, with 14 abstentions.

History of Deal

The report chronologically recorded the history of the transaction from the time of the purchase of the five-room apartment by Mr. Eshkol in 1951. Under the terms of the lease, Mr. Eshkol paid IL2,500 for his share of the land, IL2,500 for the building and IL2,500 for the furniture and fixtures.

Ben-Gurion Replies

Mr. Ben-Gurion, replying on behalf of the Government, recounted what Mr. Eshkol, on his own initiative, had told the Cabinet about the matter last week.

Knesset Rejects Ban on Pigs

FAWZI SEEKS ENVOYS OF U.N. COUNCIL STATES

Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi yesterday received the diplomatic envoys in Egypt of Security Council member states to discuss with them the forthcoming Council session on the U.N. Secretary-General's report on the Middle East, according to MENA yesterday.

Sec'y-General Prefers Patience

Israel is to go ahead in arranging with the Chairman of the Egyptian-Israeli Mixed Armistice Commission the establishment of observation posts along the Gaza Strip border, the Foreign Ministry spokesman announced last night.

Cairo Balks On Observation Posts

This follows Egypt's refusal to allow the M.A.C. to discuss the matter. It was agreed between the Israeli and Egyptian Governments on May 1, during the recent visit of the U.N. Secretary-General, Mr. Hammarskjöld, that the M.A.C. will work out details of his proposal.

Indirect Action

The Western Powers are therefore approaching further action by Mr. Hammarskjöld indirectly. The resolution will not ask him to return to the Middle East, enlarging his mandate towards a settlement, but will probably request him to continue his efforts to resolve, as unfinished business, such as the setting up of observation posts along the Gaza Strip. 'NY Times' Lauds B-G Offer to Nasser

NEW YORK, Wednesday (UPI). — Premier Ben-Gurion's offer to meet Abdel Nasser to settle the Egyptian settlement was praised today by "The New York Times".

It said that this assumed significance of still unconfirmed reports that the Egyptian leader is revising his attitude towards Israel and is now advising Arab States to drop their insistence on the UN partition plan and to adopt a new policy based on acceptance of the present demarcation lines.

It called the unprecedented visit to Israel of Ibrahim El-Nakhal, correspondent of the Cairo weekly "Rose al-Yousef", the first breach in the curtain set up by the Arabs against Israel which has let some fresh air into a stifling atmosphere.

The paper said that the Egyptian newspaper is now "presenting to the Egyptians a picture of Israel rather different from that offered them by their own propaganda."

The Estate of Zvi Yacov Levin, Appellant, v. Yehoshua Levin, Respondent (C.A. 202/54).
Mortgage Tied to Value of Import Dollar

The Supreme Court allowed an appeal against a judgment of the Tel Aviv District Court, delivered on July 28, 1954 (C.A. 202/54).

In 1954, the appellant gave the respondents a mortgage of IL100. At the time, the value of the Israel pound was IL1.50. Firmness Needed On Race Issue

Jerusalem Post Reporter
The U.S. could not segregation in the South in a much shorter time than thought if the Federal and State authorities would show a firm stand in meeting the problem of integration.

Justice Silberg, a Vice-President of the National Association for the Advancement of the Coloured People, said that integration could be accomplished if these officials showed that they intended to obey the Supreme Court decision which forbids segregation.

He opened his talk by remarking that if he was to say only good things about America, he would be fooling only himself. A true picture of America was his best sales talk and the U.S. could be its democracy abroad only if it was adopted at home.

The U.S. had an "extraordinary" framework for social justice, but too often it was not put into practice, many times on the excuse that reforms should not be hurried.

He cited one instance in South Carolina where a judge ordered to the eyes of an executed killer were transplanted here today to the eyes of a little blind boy.

Doctors said the boy, whom they did not identify, had a 50-50 chance to see through the eyes of Robert Graham, hanged earlier in the day for murder.

After the 34-year-old Graham walked to the gallows, surgeons at Vancouver General Hospital performed the operation on the boy. Graham's corneas were removed less than an hour after he died.

Graham's father said later, "Bob found Christ at the end. He wanted to do something for somebody. That is the only thing he wanted to do."

A new branch of potential exports, local works of art and handicrafts, was exhibited at this week at the King David Hotel in Jerusalem by Mrs. Martha Urdang, head of Rina Gallery.

Mrs. Urdang, who is leaving Israel at the end of next week in an effort to introduce her works abroad, said that good chances existed in this field. A recent survey by the U.S. Operations Mission had shown that the American public was interested in this type of goods which included wood, metal, work, mosaics, ceramics and other works of art.
